

Sheigra DXpedition Report

12th to 25th October 2019 - with Dave Kenny & Alan Pennington

This was the 58th DXpedition to Sheigra in Sutherland on the far north western tip of the Scottish mainland, just south of Cape Wrath. DXers made the first long drive up here in 1979, so this we guess, was the 40th anniversary? And the DXers who first made the trip to Sheigra in 1979 to listen to MW would probably notice little change here today: the single-track road ending in the same cluster of cottages, the cemetery besides the track towards the sea and, beyond that, the machair in front of Sheigra's sandy bay. And surrounding Sheigra, the wild windswept hillsides, lochans and rocky cliffs pounded by the Atlantic. (You can read reports on our 18 most recent Sheigra DXpeditions on the BDXC website here: <http://bdxc.org.uk/articles.html> )

Once again we made Murdo's traditional crofter's cottage our DX base. From here our long wire Beverage aerials can radiate out across the hillsides towards the sea and the Americas to the west and north west, and eastwards towards Asia, parallel to the old, and now very rough, peat track which continues on north east into the open moors after the tarmac road ends at Sheigra.

We were fortunate to experience good MW conditions throughout our fortnight's stay, thanks to very low solar activity. And on the last couple of days we were treated to some superb conditions with AM signals from the west coast of Canada and the US being audible until almost midday, with signals from the Far East fading in as early as around 1100 – the earliest we can recall hearing Japan on MW! On this DXpedition we only put up 3 Beverages, although given the conditions, can only begin to imagine what we might have heard, had we put up that fourth beverage towards Alaska! As in 2017, we added a EWE aerial at the back of the cottage, using two flexible fibreglass windsock poles, used for occasional shortwave reception or as an extra MW aerial which we could move around to alter its directivity. All our logs are made in real time using AOR 7030plus receivers. We record onto mini disc which have an advantage of having a 12 second built in pre-recording delay so you never miss recording an ID: press record after the ID and the previous 12 seconds are already recorded!

There's always something new to hear and we were pleased to log a few more "Sheigra firsts": not necessarily the first time these stations have been logged in the UK, but the first time according to Tony Rogers' comprehensive records, that these stations have been logged on the many Sheigra DXpeditions. This included a few US daytimers and even one low power emergency information station, AGREM, in Pennsylvania on 1670 kHz.

On our last visit in 2017 there was some slight "clicking" interference from a nearby electric fence, but this was not connected for most of our stay this year and even when it was, it could barely be detected even on the Asian wire which runs close by. There were occasional bursts of electrical interference lasting for a few minutes at a time, which seemed to be coming in on the mains, we never located the source but it was only noticeable occasionally on weak signals.

The Caribbean/Latin America aerial which usually works really well, was behaving very oddly this year, hardly anything was heard on it and we might as well not have bothered with it. We regularly measure the resistance of the aerials back at the cottage to check for any breaks in the wires: usually the readings are stable unless there is an actual break. Initially the Caribbean wire was measuring correctly, but after a couple of days its resistance changed to several kΩ and then later changed to indicate a positive current on the wire! We eventually found the new copper earth rod from Screwfix was the problem. After a few days it showed signs of rust in the damp peaty ground so it seems to be constructed not just of copper but of two types of metal which are reacting to prevent it earthing properly. Anyhow it's clearly unfit for purpose and we will revert to using salvaged copper pipes for earthing in future.

The weather was mild during our first week when there was some glorious sunshine with the temperature peaking at 14°C one afternoon. The second week was a lot windier with some heavy rain at times and overnight temperatures down to 2°C overnight and gales at the end of the week. Taking down the North American aerial on the exposed high ground on our last day in a Force 8 gale was no fun!

We saw (and heard) red deer (3 does and a large stag) overnight from Day 1, especially on the hillside to the north, above our cottage. Fortunately they caused little damage to our wire aerials this trip. After evidence of deer maybe running into one wire on our first night, there was no more damage to wires until our last night when several breaks in the wire were discovered in the morning, we put this down to the very strong gusts of wind overnight, not the deer though.
